Hale, of Cameron, Texas, and William O'Toole, of Battle Creek, Mich, the latter having a parcel of land near Mirage, the first station out of Deming northeast on the Santa Fc. The boys were prospecting when they discovered the mountain of rock, which they supposed to contain tungsten. They sent samples for assay and found that instead of having tungsten they had a good proposition in tin.

Further investigation was made, when it was found that there were practically three mountain peaks, embracing several hundred area, that were composed mostly of heavy ore bearing in, which would produce not less than $100 worth of tin per ten. One or two other samples were sent for assay and the result is all the same.

According to the experts who have examined the properties there seems to be enough tin there to pay for a large smelter on the ground.

The ore is also rich in magnese and silers. The black topped peaks can

Bonds were Irregular,
The market closed firm. The recuperation stimulated more effective buying for both accounts, which either canceled losses or reduced them in most cases to small fractions. Amalgamated developed some of its earlier firmness and there was large buying of Steel and Union Pacific, both of which sold beyond Saturday's close. Sufficient buying power was created in the last half of the day to put the list well over the early low figures. The demand, however, was not vigorous and did not impress the short interest greatly.
